

Abstract:

The thesis elaborates on the potential impact of the financial crisis on the European value system. At root of this work lies the debate on the prospectively changed perception of human nature, freedom and economic progress, taking into consideration European humanist inheritance and contribution of contemporary economic and political thinkers.