

The goal of this thesis is to translate the article Room For Improvement: A Guide To DIY Studio Acoustics published in the Sound On Sound magazine in December 2007 from English into Czech and then, in the commentary section, to work out its translation analysis, describe the main issues encountered during translation, defend the method of translation we opted for and solutions to individual problems. A reformatted copy of the source text is attached.