

The aim of this work is to describe the evaluation process of endangered child in family in the frame of multidisciplinary cooperation. The evaluation process itself is described from the point of view of nonprofit organization's field worker, who works with related client's family. It describes the rules of social work with multiproblem family starting from initial introduction of the family and involved experts up to the evaluation process which makes base for further plans of the work among the family and all involved multidisciplinary organizations. The task of this thesis is to support described process with its application on real cases.