

This work is not written because of evidence necessary to study Zen Buddhism and practice meditation. I rather want to show that Zen Buddhism view of the world and individual in it is at least latently present in our philosophical traditions.