

Screening of old people is very important from the point of evaluating their independence.
Such screening was performed in Slovakia for the first time ever.