

The topic of my presentation is children's hospital admission together with their parents or siblings.

However it belongs among the basic child rights and was stated by the National Association for the Welfare of Children in Hospital in 1988, nineteen years later this still is not an effortless practice at every hospital and with every admitted child.

Not only hospitals / the smaller ones especially / can have problems to accommodate parents or other attendants, but some difficulties occur even from the parents.

I wanted to find out what the main problems are and what could be done for their elimination. I was questioning both parents and medical staff to discover what could be easily improved and what problems will need long term prepared and systematic measures which will not be fulfilled without hospital management help.

The results will be presented to the managers and staff nurses so that they could call them gradually into action. Some of the recommended measures could make hospital stay more pleasant and easier for both children and their parents.
